ACADEMIC DEPARTMENT.

COURSES OF STUDY.

The Preparatory Department has three classes, of which the highest is designated the First. The Collegiate Department embraces three regular courses. The Classical Course, for the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, occupies four years; its classes being known as Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior. The Philosophical Course, for the Degree of Bachelor of Philosophy, omitting the Greek and much of the Latin of the Classical Course, requires three years; its classes being designated First, Second, and Third Philosophical. The Advanced Course, for the Degree of Master of Arts, embraces six schools, the exercises of which may be all attended in one or two years by graduates or students of equivalent attainments. A Select Course, embracing studies in different classes, may be taken by young men of adequate maturity.

TIME AND TERMS OF ADMISSION.

The regular Examinations for admission to College are held on Monday and Tuesday of Commencement week, and on the Monday and Tuesday immediately preceding the opening of the session. Every applicant is required to deliver to the President testimonials of good moral character; and if he come from another college he must present a certificate of honorable dismission.

Candidates for the Degree of Bachelor of Arts, in order to obtain admission to the Freshman Class, must, unless they have passed through the regular course in the Preparatory Department, sustain an examination in the following studies:

English Grammar; Modern Geography; Arithmetic; Algebra, through Quadratic Equations; Geometry, first three books; Sophocles' or Kuhner's Greek Grammar; Jacob's or Felton's Greek Reader; Andrews and Stoddart's Latin Grammar; Cæsar's Commentaries, or some equivalent; Cicero's Select Orations; Virgil.

Candidates for the Degree of Bachelor of Philosophy must pass an examination in the English studies and Mathematics already named and in Latin of the third year of the Preparatory Department, or an equivalent.

Candidates for admission to any class must be examined in all the previous studies of the class they propose to enter.

Students pursuing a Select Course may enter any classes for which they are fitted, the number of their studies being subject to the direction of the Faculty.

Any Student of this, or of any other College, who has passed examinations in all the required and elective studies of the A. B. Course, and has taken two of the above Schools, or who, omitting the elective studies, has taken three Schools, will be entitled to the Degree.

COLLEGE FACILITIES.

RHETORICAL EXERCISES.

Compositions and Declamations, each twice a month, are required throughout the whole Course, and during the last year and a half, the pieces spoken are original, and must be presented, before their delivery, to the Professor of Rhetoric for criticism. The advantage of attendance on the debates in Congress makes this department one of great value to the student.

LITERARY SOCIETIES.

There are two Literary Societies formed by the students of the College, the Enosinian and the Philophrenian, which meet weekly at their halls for the purpose of improvement in Debate and Composition.

LIBRARIES.

The College Library contains about five thousand volumes, and is especially valuable in the Department of Theology. The Libraries of the Enosinian and Philophrenian Societies contain about three thousand volumes, principally in the departments of History and Literature. The Libraries of Congress, and of the various Departments of Government, are veluable auxiliaries to students.

PRIZES.

The "Davis Prizes for Elocution" provided by the income of a fund contributed by Hon. Isaac Davis, LL. D., of Massachusetts, consist of two gold medals, awarded to the most successful contestants in Declamation.

The "Staughton Prize for the Latin Language and Literature," and the "Elton Prize for the Greek Language and Literature," provided by the income of a fund contributed by Rev. Romeo Elton, D D. of Exeter, England, consist of two gold medals awarded to the best scholar and writer in the Greek and Latin Languages.

The "Gale Prizes for Physical Sciences," provided by the income of a fund contributed by L. D. Gale, M. D., of Washington, D. C., consist of two gold medals, awarded to the best two scholars in the Physical Sciences.

The "Ruggles Prizes for Mathematics," provided by the income of a fund given by Wm. Ruggles, LL. D., Senior Professor at the College, consist of two gold medals, awarded to the best two scholars in the Pure and Applied Mathematics.

The medals are awarded at the Annual Commencement by a committee of gentlemen appointed by the Faculty. Any member of the third Philosophical, Junior or Senior Classes may be a contestant for the "Davis Prizes;" any member of the Junior or Senior Classes, for the "Staughton Prizes;" and any member of the third Philosophical or Senior Classes, for the "Gale" or "Ruggles Prizes;" provided he shall have attained during any one year of his course the grade of nine in the department to which the prize is attached, an average of eight in all the studies of his course, and shall not have fallen below six in any study.

In 1867 the following students were the successful contestants for the prizes:

The first Gale Prize for Natural Sciences was awarded to A. B. Duvall, of D. C., and the second one to Lee Chiswell, of Maryland.

The first Staughton Prize for Latin was awarded to J. H. France, Jr., of D. C., and a first to J. T. Beckley, of Maryland, ex æquo.

The first Elton Prize for Greek was awarded to J. H. France, Jr., of D. C., and the second to J. T. Beckley, of Maryland.

The First Davis Prize for Elocution was awarded to A. B. Duvall, of D. C., and the second to J. H. France, Jr., of D. C.

LECTURES.

Courses of Lectures in various departments of Science, Art, and Literature can be secured at the College from men of eminence residing temporarily at Washington. The Lectures at the Smithsonian Institution are free to all who choose to attend.

PUBLIC WORSHIP.

Prayers, accompanied by the reading of the Scriptures, are offered daily in the College Chapel. All students are required to attend this service, and also some place of worship regularly on the Sabbath, the selection being left to themselves, or with their parents or guardian.

COMMENCEMENT, VACATION, AND EXAMINATIONS.

The Annual Commencement is held on the last Wednesday in June. It is succeeded by a vacation extending to the last Wednesday in September. The College year, embracing nine months, is divided into two terms. The first term commences on the last Wednesday in September, and continues to Friday preceding the third Monday in February. The second term commences on the third Monday in February, and ends with Commencement. Public examinations, in all the studies pursued, are held immediately before the close of each term.

Examinations are also required annually, during the College Course, in the common branches of an English Education.

COLLEGE EXPENSES.

CHARGES FOR STUDENTS BOARDING IN COLLEGE.

1. Admission Fee, (paid but once, on entrance,)	$10 00
2. Tuition for the year	55 00
3. Room rent, servant's attendance	20 00
4. Fuel, public and private	16 00
5. Use of furniture, provided by the College	12 00
6. Board for 39 weeks, at $4.00 per week	156 00
7. Washing, at 75 cents per dozen, estimated at	15 00

CHARGES FOR STUDENTS NOT BOARDING IN COLLEGE.

1. Admission Fee, (paid but once, on entrance,)	$10 00
2. Tuition for the year	55 00
3. Room rent, servant's attendance	20 00
4. Fuel, public and private	12 00
6. Use of furniture	6 00

The Boarding department is presided over by the Principal of the Preparatory Department. Perishable articles of furniture, as crockery and glass, must be provided by students. Students from abroad, whose parents request it in writing, will be allowed to board in private families. In order to the cleanliness of the rooms, it is required that bedding, three pieces at least per week, be washed at the College laundry, at the charge of 75 cents per dozen.

Boarding clubs can be organized by students of limited means; a plain but substantial bill of fare being obtained at a less price than can be afforded at public or private tables.

One-half of all bills must be paid at the opening, and the other half at the middle of the sesson. The previous settlement of bills is requisite to admission to recitations.

FACILITIES TO STUDENTS FOR THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY.

It has ever been a leading object of the founders and liberal patrons of the College to furnish facilities to students having in view the Christian Ministry; and large numbers of candidates for that office, of various religious denominations, have received the advantages afforded to such students. It would be doing violence to the cherished hopes of those who have given nearly all the funds which the College now possesses, should this, their design, not be sacredly kept in view. Tuition will therefore be gratuitous to those of limited means who shall be recommended by the Faculty as worthy beneficiaries; and in special cases further facilities may be furnished.

GENERAL RULES OF DISCIPLINE.

The discipline of the College is designed for youth who desire to improve their time and are disposed to that order which is essential to this end.

On entering, each student is required to sign a pledge, on his honor, to obey all the laws of the Institution, so long as he shall remain a member of it. After having received a certificate of matriculation from the President he must deposit a sum equal to one-half of all the annual College charges; and no student can be permitted to recite until he shall have satisfactorily arranged for his College bills. No abatement for absence, after admission, is made in the bill for board for less than one month, nor in any other College bill for less than one term, except in case of protracted illness. Every student is required to make choice of his studies immediately upon the commencement of the term, and punctually to attend all the exercises pertaining to his course.

A merit-roll is kept, and each recitation is noted on the grade of from 0 to 10. Demerits are given for absences from Chapel services, from Recitations, and from rooms during the hours of study, as well as for misconduct. No excuse is granted except on previous written application of parent or guardian if residing in the city, or by previous permission obtained from some officer of the College. The average of the merit-roll, including all absences from College exercises and all excuses granted, however reasonable, will be sent half-quarterly to the parents or guardians of the students. When any student has one hundred such marks for any one term, or one hundred and fifty for any one year, he must leave the Institution.

The recitations of the advanced Classes are brought into the early portion of the day; closing generally at one o'clock, P. M., and on Saturday at eleven o'clock, A. M. The advantages of an attendance upon Congress, upon the Lectures at the Smithsonian Institution, etc., are thus secured without detriment to proficiency in study. Any parent or guardian who desires a special privilege for his son or ward in this respect must signify it in writing to the Faculty.

All students are required to abstain from whatever is inconsistent with a due observance of the Sabbath, and regularly to attend, every Sabbath morning, such particular place of Divine Worship as may be chosen by themselves or by their parents or guardians. On Sabbath night they are expected to attend religious service at the College Chapel when such service shall be appointed. But any student may for sufficient reasons be excused by the President, or by one of the Professors, to attend, either morning or night, other places of worship.

All immorality in word or deed and all ungentlemanly conduct are strictly forbidden. No student is allowed to attend the theatre, or any such place, or to visit any bar-room or similar establishment, or to visit any hotel but for special and adequate reasons. No student is allowed to have at his command any deadly weapon, or gunpowder, any cards or other means of gambling, or any intoxicating liquor.

Any student is entitled to an honorable dismission at any time, according to his actual standing, provided his College bills are fully discharged; and provided, if a minor, he has the written sanction of his parent or guardian. Whenever a student can no longer cheerfully comply with College rules he is expected to comply with his pledge, and leave the Institution.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

INSTRUCTION AND DISCIPLINE

The Preparatory Department occupies a commodious building on the College premises. It is designed to afford pupils a thorough preparation to enter the Classical or Scientific Department, and also furnishes thorough instruction in High School studies to youth fitting for business. It is under the immediate supervision of the Faculty, and is subject to the general regulations of the College in regard to discipline. The Principal is aided in the care and instruction of the Department by most of the College Officers and by necessary Assistant Teachers. The School session commences on the second Wednesday of September, and closes on the last Wednesday of June. Monthly reports of the scholarship and deportment of the pupils are sent to parents; and they are requested always to communicate with the President of the College, or the Principal of the School, on receipt of the monthly reports.

The High School course, for pupils who have completed their studies in the common English branches, occupies two years. During the first year, the Latin of the Third Class, the Mathematics of the First Class, and Botany and Physics in the College Classes, are pursued, with special instruction in Rhetoric and the English Language. In the second year the French of the First Class, and Geometry, Algebra, Trigonometry, and Chemistry in College Classes are taken, with special instruction in Moral and Mental Science.

LITERARY SOCIETY.

Connected with the Preparatory School is a Literary Society, called "The Hermesian," in which weekly debates are held. The Society has a Library of choice books, containing some hundreds of volumes.

LAW DEPARTMENT,

LOCATION AND PLAN.

The Law Building is located on Judiciary Square, Fifth street, between D and E streets. The chief aim of the School is to give a thorough training for ordinary practice of the legal profession. It proposes at the same time to furnish the means of general study in collateral branches of a finished legal education, and also to give direction to the special studies of young men wishing to fit themselves for practice in any State of the American Union.

ADMISSION.

As the Course of Study demands maturity of mind, it is adapted either to graduates of Colleges or to those who have attained by study thorough discipline of their mental powers. Any, however, who desire, are admitted to the Recitations and Lectures of the School, their graduation depending on their success in mastering the daily exercises and in passing the final examinations. No one is admitted as a candidate for graduation to the Senior Class who has not spent one year either at this or some other Law School, or performed a correspondent amount of study under some approved attorney.

SESSIONS.

The entire Course of Study embraces two years, beginning with the second Wednesday in October and closing the second Wednesday of June following. The exercises of the School are all held after the usual office hours, which close at 3 o'clock, thus giving to students the entire day for study, for reading in the public Libraries, and for attending the several Courts of the Capital, and at the same time enabling young men engaged in office duties to avail themselves of the facilities of the School.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

The School is divided into two classes, a Junior and Senior. Daily Recitations, in connection with Text Books, are conducted by the Officers of Instruction, the Teacher giving a prelection or commentary on the appointed lesson, and questioning each pupil both on the text and comment. Students are desired to take notes of Lectures, and are expected to be prepared for examination by the Lecturer. The Course of Recitations embraces the important departments of Common Law and its Commentaries; of Criminal, Commercial, and Admiralty Jurisprudence; of Evidence and Pleading; and Equity Jurisprudence and Pleading. The Lectures relate to special topics, bearing directly on the studies of the Class Room, or treat upon subsidiary branches essential to the comprehensive student.

TEXT BOOKS.

The best in each department will always be chosen. The following list, subject to revision, is at present the preferred selection:

First Year or Junior Course.—Blackstone's Commentaries; Williams on Real Property; Williams on Personal Property; Chitty on Contracts; Byles on Bills; Kent's Commentaries.

Second Year or Senior Course.—Stephen on Pleading; Starkie on Evidence; Adams' Equity; Mitford's Chancery Pleading; Story on the Law of Partnership; Parsons' Maritime Law.

MOOT COURT.

A Moot Court is held every other week, at which Dr. Tyler presides. Two Associate Judges are selected each month from the Senior Class. Each case is argued by four members of the School; a Senior and Junior counsel and advocate upon each side being selected from their respective classes. An opportunity is thus furnished to all the students for frequent practice, both in the preparation of arguments and of Judicial opinions.

CLUBS.

Associations for mutual improvement, both in the discussion of subjects connected with Law studies, and practice in forensic debate, are encouraged. The Halls of the Law Building, warmed and lighted, are free for the use of such Associations.

LIBRARIES.

The Library of the Law School will be furnished with all the important Text Books, Reports, and other Books of reference. The unequalled collection of the Congressional Library is open during six hours of each day to all who wish to examine any authority, or to take notes from any book of reference, ancient or modern.

SPECIAL FACILITIES.

The City of Washington furnishes, beyond any other city of the Union, special facilities for the Law student as well as for the general scholar. Besides the Local Courts, Criminal and that of Common Pleas, the sessions of the Federal Courts, both the Circuit and Supreme Courts, are invaluable for practical instruction to students. Besides these, the discussions on Patent Law, the deliberations of the Court of Claims, the frequent sessions of Military and Admiralty tribunals, and the debates on Constitutional and International Law in the Halls of Congress, form a combination of facilities, to one desirous of general improvement, such as no other city affords. In addition to these direct aids, the best Lectures on subsidiary topics can be secured from able men in every department of legal science who resort to the Federal Capital.

EXAMINATIONS AND GRADUATION.

All candidates for graduation, besides the daily examinations of the Class Room, are required to pass a general examination, at the end of their course, on all the studies of the two years, in the presence of the Faculty or of such Committee as the Trustees of the College may appoint.

The degree of Bachelor of Laws is granted to students who, having passed both years of the prescribed course in the School, or who on presenting credentials of equivalent study in some Law College or office, and passing one year in the School, shall sustain satisfactory examinations in all the studies of both the Junior and Senior Classes. The degrees will be publicly conferred, either at the closing exercise of the session of the Law Department, or at the Annual Commencement of the Academical Department, on the fourth Wednesday in June.

EXPENSES.

The entire charge for Tuition, Lectures, use of Library, and all facilities of the School, is eighty dollars for a single year, or one hundred and fifty dollars for two years. Half year tickets of admission to Recitations and Lectures are issued on the second Wednesdays in October and February, on payment of forty dollars in advance.

Half year tickets to attendants on Lectures and other exercises of the School, who are not candidates for graduation or subjects of examination, are furnished at twenty dollars, invariably in advance. A charge of six dollars is made for diplomas, and of three dollars for engrossed certificates of attainment. Students from abroad can obtain rooms and board at prices as reasonable as in other cities, either at the College or in the city.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.

LOCATION, TIME, AND PLAN.

The building of this Department, the gift of W. W. Corcoran, is located on H street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets. The Annual Session begins on Thursday, October 1st, and ends on the 1st of March. The regular Lectures are held in the latter portion of the day, affording the morning hours for study of Text Books, reading in Libraries, or practical Clinical instruction, for which ample opportunities are afforded. Medical and Surgical Clinics are held at the College on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Military and other General Hospitals are visited for Clinical instruction.

TEXT BOOKS AND WORKS OF REFERENCE.

Anatomy.—Leidy's or Gray's Anatomy; Dalton's Physiology.

Materia Medica.—Wood & Bache's Dispensatory; Wood's or Stille's Therapeutics.

Surgery.—Druit's or Gross' Surgery; Paget's Surgical Pathology.

Obstetrics.—Ramsbotham's or Churchill's Midwifery; West or Condie on Diseases of Children.

Practice.—Wood's or Watson's Practice.

Chemistry.—Fowne's Chemistry.

GRADUATION.

The requisites for graduating are, that the candidate shall have attended the Lectures of each Professor two full courses, or one full course in this school, and one full course in some other respectable institution. He must have a fair moral character, and have dissected during at least one session. He shall have entered his name with the Dean of the Faculty as a candidate for graduation, and delivered to him an Inaugural Dissertation upon some medical subject thirty days before the close of the session, and have passed a satisfactory examination.

All persons who have attended two full courses of Lectures in this school are entitled to attend succeeding courses free of expense. Graduates of other accredited Medical Colleges after three years are required to matriculate only. Prior to the expiration of three years, the fee for a general ticket is $50.

EXPENSES.

Expense of full course of Lectures by all the Professors,	$135 00
Single Tickets,	20 00
Practical Anatomy, by the Demonstrator,	10 00
Matriculating Fee, payable only once,	5 00
Graduating Expenses,	30 00

No charge is made for Clinical Lectures. Tickets must be taken out at the commencement of the session. Remission or deduction of fees, and taking promissory notes from students, are forbidden by the By-Laws of the College.

The price of board, and of all other personal expenses, is as reasonable in Washington as in the other large cities of the Union.

FACILITIES OF LOCATION.

The location of the College at the seat of the National Government affords peculiar advantages to the medical student. At no other city in the country can there be found so large an amount of illustration of collateral branches of medical science freely and gratuitously open to the student. These advantages increase in proportion with the advancing importance of the Metropolitan City.

The College Museum has itself a rare and extensive collection. The city of Washington is also the centre of the medical organization of the Army of the United States, and the Museum established by the Medical Department of the United States Army is now equal, if not superior to any similar collection in the world; its material having been obtained from a greater number of cases, and from a greater variety of climate, than has ever yet been brought together in one place in any country.

The Libraries of Congress, the Smithsonian Institution, and the Patent Office, enriched with rare and costly works in all the departments of science and literature, afford opportunities for the profitable employment of hours of leisure from professional study, which are seldom equalled anywhere.

HISTORY

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE.

The successive measures which fixed the Seat of the United States Government in the District of Columbia were, first, the Act of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed December 22, 1788; second, the Act of the General Assembly of Virginia, passed December 3, 1789; and third, the Act of the Congress of the United States, passed July 16, 1790, accepting the grant of territory made by those two States.

Even before the acceptance of the proffer was definitely acted upon, the subject of a system of national education was on the mind of Washington, the first President. In his message to the second Congress convened January 8, 1790, at its first session, seeing that the resort for higher education to the English Universities common before the War of Independence, could no longer be consistent with the wants of a free people, Washington urged that this demand, first in importance, should be promptly met. Submitting to the extended experience of the representatives the question as to the method of meeting this necessity, he says: "Whether this desirable object will be best promoted by affording aid to seminaries of learning already established, by the institution of a National University, or by any other expedients, will be well worthy of a place in the deliberations of the legislature."

Seven years later, near the close of his second term of office, his convictions had become settled, that a National University was adapted to accomplish the end desired; and for the establishment of such an Institution, he made this last appeal to Congress: "Its desireableness has so constantly increased with every new view that I have taken of the subject, that I cannot omit the opportunity of, once for all, recalling your attention to it." Among its expected advantages, he suggests the following: "The assimilation of the principles, opinions, and manners of our countrymen, by the common education of a portion of our youth from every quarter." "The more homogeneous our citizens can be made in these particulars, the greater will be the prospect of permanent union." As the testimony of his deep and growing interest in this enterprise, he left at his death, in December, 1799, this bequest in his last will and testament: "I give the fifty shares which I hold in the Potomac Company towards the endowment of a University, to be established within the limits of the District of Columbia, under the auspices of the General Government, if that Government should incline to extend a fostering hand towards it."

President Jefferson, having views differing from those of Washington as to the power of Congress to provide for such general objects, commends, nevertheless, this recommendation of Washington in his message to Congress of December 2, 1806, urging it on their present consideration. President Madison, early in his first term of office, earnestly presented the same object in his message of December 5, 1810. He enlarges upon the reasons which weighed with Washington, thus: "Such an institution, though local in its legal character, would be universal in its beneficial effects. By enlightening the opinions, by expanding the patriotism, and by assimilating the principles, the sentiments, and the manners of those who might resort to this temple of science, to be re-distributed in due time through every part of the community, sources of jealousy and prejudice would be diminished, the features of national character would be multiplied, and greater extent given to social harmony. But above all, a well constituted seminary in the centre of the nation, is recommended by the consideration, that the additional instruction emanating from it, would contribute not less to strengthen the foundations, than to adorn the structure of our free and happy system of government."

At the close of the war, in his message of December 5, 1815, President Madison returns to this subject, and reiterates his appeal, as follows: "Such an institution claims the patronage of Congress, as a monument of their solicitude for the advancement of knowledge, without which the blessings of liberty cannot be fully enjoyed, or long preserved; as a model, instructive in the formation of other seminaries; as a nursery of enlightened preceptors; and as a central resort of youth and genius from every part of their country, diffusing on their return, examples of those national feelings, those liberal sentiments, and those congenial manners which contribute cement to our Union, and strength to the great political fabric, of which that is the foundation."

Those long-entertained opinions of such men could not have been hastily conceived; and nothing but the differing views in the National Congress as to the power of the General Government to act in the matter, and the pressure of other claims, could have led to the continued neglect of these reiterated Executive recommendations. Washington's legacy was left unappropriated; Jefferson, after his presidency, accomplished for his State, in the University of Virginia, what he despaired of for the nation; and since Madison's day, private enterprise has been left to meet a want, which public patronage could not attempt of itself, though it has fostered it.

Two years after the site of the National Capital was fixed, in 1792, the College of Georgetown, established under the auspices of the Order of Jesuits, was founded. For twenty-five years this was the only institution for higher education in the District of Columbia; no other being called into existence by the repeated efforts of succeeding chief magistrates. About the year 1817, during the administration of President Munroe, Rev. Luther Rice, agent of the Baptist General Convention of the United States conceived the idea of founding a College in the city of Washington. In 1819, the lot of ground north of Washington city now occupied by the Columbian College, embracing nearly forty-seven acres, extending about half a mile northward from Boundary street, between 14th and 15th streets extended, was purchased for the sum of about $7,000. The main building, one hundred and seventeen feet long by forty-seven wide, begun early in 1820, and costing about $35,000, was in 1822 sufficiently completed to allow of the opening of the College. The charter obtained from Congress was approved by President Munroe, February 9, 1821. It gave University powers to the Trustees and Faculty; allowing the organization of Academic and Professional Schools, and the granting of certificates of attainment and diplomas of graduation in the several departments. One of the provisions of the charter was, "persons of every religious denomination shall be capable of being elected as Trustees; nor shall any person either as President, Professor, Tutor, or pupil, be refused admittance into said College, or be denied any of its privileges, immunities, or advantages thereof, for or on account of, his sentiments in matters of religion." In pursuance of these provisions, the several departments of the College, Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological, Law and Medical were soon organized. The first classes were gathered in 1822, and the first graduates received their diplomas in 1825. The list of officers and graduates in the subjoined lists indicate how fully in conformity with the spirit of the charter the College has been conducted.

At the opening of the College, though most of its funds were obtained by Mr. Rice, the agent, from members of a single religious denomination, personal donations and expressions of interest were received from men of eminence at home and abroad; from Moses Stuart, Richard Rush, and others of like standing in the religious and literary circles of the United States, and kindred spirits, such as Joseph Butterworth and William Wilberforce in the mother country. In Great Britain, also, an appeal on behalf of the College was signed by Sir James Mackintosh, Olinthus Gregory, Rev. Dr. E. Bickersteth, Adam Clarke, and John Rippon, with about forty other distinguished persons, expressing their "pleasure at the efforts making for the establishment of a University near the Metropolis of the United States," and urging "generous co-operation of the friends of literature, science, and learning, in its support." Among others President Monroe gave the following expression of his personal confidence and hope: "There is good reason to believe that the hopes of those who have so patriotically contributed to advance it to its present stage, will not be disappointed. Its commencement will be under circumstances very favorable to its success. Its position, on the high grounds north of the city, is remarkably healthy. The act of incorporation is well digested, looks to the proper objects, and grants the powers well adapted to their attainment. The establishment of the institution within the Federal District, in the presence of Congress and of all the departments of the Government, will secure to the young men who may be educated in it, many important advantages; among which the opportunity which it will afford them of hearing the debates in Congress, and in the Supreme Court, on important subjects, must be obvious to all. With these peculiar advantages, this institution, if it receives hereafter the proper encouragement, cannot fail to be eminently useful to the nation. Under this impression, I trust that such encouragement will not be withheld from it."

During the succeeding administration, President John Quincy Adams became its special friend and patron; assisting it with a loan of nearly $20,000 in its time of need, of which he relinquished as a donation $7,000; while, also, even during his Presidency, he frequently visited the College to watch its progress. Andrew Jackson, also, in his Presidency, expressed his personal and official interest in the welfare of theCollege.

The first President of the College was Rev. William Staughton, D. D., the eminently popular preacher and theological teacher, of Philadelphia. Associated with him during the first six years of its history, were Irah Chase, D. D., afterwards founder of the Theological Institution, at Newton, Mass.; Samuel Waite, the founder and first President of Wake Forest College, North Carolina; Rufus Babcock and Robert E. Pattison, both afterwards Presidents of Waterville College, Maine; Alexis Caswell, subsequently the eminent Professor and the lately appointed President of Brown University, Rhode Island; James D. Knowles and Thomas J. Conant, both eminent as scholars and authors; and

Wm. Ruggles, LL. D., the present revered and able Senior Professor of the College. Among the early graduates are found men who have since graced the pulpit, the bar and the forum, in every section of the United States.

From the year 1827, financial embarrassments for nearly twenty years crippled the energies of the College. Its self-sacrificing agent, however, Luther Rice, wore himself out in unremunerated efforts, till his death in South Carolina, in 1836, to sustain its credit; and an untiring corps of instructors made its efficiency in the work of education permanent and unimpaired. The facilities for intellectual improvement at the National Metropolis, especially in the departments which train effective speakers, greatly aided the thorough classroom instruction of the College; while the marked line which in high places is seen to separate virtue and vice, has made it, contrary to the fears of many, a location pre-eminently favorable for high-toned moral training. The special power of that unconscious mental discipline and elevation arising from indirect association with men of culture and of high position is often recalled by its early graduates.

The Law Department was organized in 1826; Wm. T. Carroll, Esq., and Wm. Cranch, LL. D., being its first Professors. Discontinued on account of the embarrassments of the College, the earnestly expressed wish for its revival led to its re-establishment in 1865. The peculiar facilities of law students at the seat of Government, the various Courts here held, not only the local and Federal Courts of other cities, but also the Admiralty Courts, the Court of Claims, and the United States Supreme Court, the pleadings before the latter of the most eminent lawyers of the country, the debates on constitutional law in the United States Senate, the unrivalled Law Library of Congress, accessible six hours every day to the public, form a combination of attractions to the thorough student.

The Medical Department, for nearly twenty years, beginning with 1825, under the conduct of Thomas Sewall, M. D., has secured from its organization the services of the ablest men of the medical profession resident at Washington. Occupying at first a building erected by the Professors themselves, granted afterwards the occupancy of rooms in and the care of the United States Infirmary, which building was consumed by fire while in use as a military hospital during the late war, the Department have now the use of the building lately occupied by the Surgical Museum, and given by W. W. Corcoran, of Washington to the Columbian College, for a medical lecture room. In addition to the facilities furnished in other cities for a medical school, the collections of the war in surgery, and the residence at Washington of able physicians and surgeons connected with the army, are peculiar to this central location.

A leading aim in the origin of the College was to furnish a school especially adapted to students for the Christian ministry. The able founder of the Theological Seminary at Newton, Mass., Rev. Irah Chase, D. D. was among its first professors, and the original library was collected by him in Europe chiefly with reference to this end. Tuition in the College has been given as a gratuity to approved young men of limited means studying for the ministry; and instruction in the original languages of the Old and New Testaments, in theology and in the other departments of ministerial education, has for the last twenty years been also gratuitously given. Young men of several religious denominations have availed themselves of these facilities; many of whom are now adorning their sacred calling in different States and cities of the Union.

Unlike institutions favored with State appropriations, the Columbian College has from the first been mainly dependent on private contributions for its support and advancement. Subscriptions and collections obtained chiefly by Rev. Luther Rice from 1817 to 1835, by Rev. A. Woods, D. D. in 1822–'3, by Rev. E. Galusha, in 1826–'7, by Rev. Robert Semple, D. D. from 1827 to 1833, by Rev. R. M. Poindexter, D. D. from 1847 to 1849, and by Rev. Wm. F. Broaddus, D. D. in 1852–'3, have been received in almost every State in the Union, and also in England; which had amounted in 1852 to about $150,000. Since 1859, about $100,000, has been added to the College property, in buildings and improvements on the grounds; most of which has been realized from donations. The most liberal individual patron has been John Withers, of Alexandria, Va., whose frequent gifts from 1835 to 1861, during his life time, and a small legacy at his death in Nov. 1861, have amounted to about $70,000. The frequent subscriptions of the Wilson family and others in Baltimore, Md., and the gift in 1866 of the medical building, valued at $30,000, by W. W. Corcoran, son of Thomas Corcoran, one of the original corporators, have greatly aided its advancement. The only public aid received has been a grant of $25,000, in Washington City lots made by Congress in 1832, during the presidency of Andrew Jackson; the College at Georgetown obtaining a similar gratuity at the same time.

The lands obtained by the College at its original purchase, a large portion of which are not needed for College purposes, are being divided into town and villa lots and are rented on leases which will eventually give an ample and safe endowment for the annual maintenance of the College. Its grounds and buildings are receiving improvements and additions as the demands of its location and patronage increase.
